

Can I use adverbials of time effectively?

Fast Five

Rhetorical questions do not require a direct answer. They are usually asked to invoke dramatic effect.

Which of these questions could act as a rhetorical question?

1. Is it raining outside?
2. Are you feeling lucky?
3. Have you ever wondered how clouds make rain?
4. What do you want for tea?
5. Are you fed up of staying inside?

Answers on the next slide

Fast Five Answers

Rhetorical questions do not require a direct answer. They are usually asked to invoke dramatic effect.

Which of these questions could act as a rhetorical question?

1. Is it raining outside?
2. Are you feeling lucky?
3. Have you ever wondered how clouds make rain?
4. What do you want for tea?
5. Are you fed up of staying inside?

Adverbials of time

An adverbial of time is a word that indicates when or how often an action happened.

Can you think of any examples?

Answers on the next slide

Adverbials of time

An adverbial of time is a word that indicates when or how often an action happened.

- First
- Next
- After that
- Then
- Before that
- Finally
- Frequently
- Sometimes

Identify the adverbials of time in this example

1. Firstly, prepare your elephant for their bathing session in an area with plenty of space. Make sure that your animal is calm, well-fed and content. It may help to tickle their tummies to relax them if they are nervous about getting wet.

Answers on the next slide

Identify the adverbial of time in this example

1. Firstly, prepare your elephant for their bathing session in an area with plenty of space. Make sure that your animal is calm, well-fed and content. It may help to tickle their tummies to relax them if they are nervous about getting wet.

Identify the adverbials of time in this example

- First, place your biscuits on the plate.
- Then, spread the yogurt onto the biscuit.
- Carefully cut up the fruit into small pieces. (Ask a grown up to help you with the sharp knife)
- Finally, put the fruit on top of the yogurt.
- Enjoy!

Answers on the next slide

Identify the adverbials of time in this example

- First, place your biscuits on the plate.
- Then, spread the yogurt onto the biscuit.
- Carefully cut up the fruit into small pieces. (Ask a grown up to help you with the sharp knife)
- Finally, put the fruit on top of the yogurt.
- Enjoy!