'The story of the theft of the Crown Jewels would be on the TV for weeks, on every website, and emblazoned across every front page of every newspaper in every country in the world. However, no one, but no one, would suspect the thieves were in fact a little old lady and an eleven-year-old boy. They were going to get away with the crime of the century!'

The story of the theft of the Crown Jewels was on the TV for weeks, on every newspaper and emblazoned across every front page of every newspaper in the world. However, no one, but no one suspected the thieves were in fact a little old lady and an eleven-year-old boy. They got away with the crime of the century.

"I've found a weakness in the Tower of London. And I have spent all week working on a plan of how we can steal the jewels. I think we can really do it."

"So, at the stroke of midnight we swim across the Thames in scuba-diving gear, and locate the ancient sewage pipe, here," whispered Ben... "If we swim up the pipe we can get inside the Tower undetected," continued Ben... "a short walk across the Courtyard to Jewel House... The door is solid steel, so we'll drill out the locks to open it... the glass isn't bomb proof. We'll set off a small explosive device to shatter the glass... You need to board a train to London earlier in the day... give the Beefeater Guards chocolate cake with something in it to make them sleep... We should go out the way we came in, through the sewage pipe. It will be a doodle."

Possible answer

It is reported that the Tower of London had been a target for weeks and the suspects had been planning for some considerable time.

The plan began with a scuba dive, across the Thames, to locate a sewage pipe. The suspects then swam up the pipe, to covertly gain access to the Tower. It is suggested that they used drills to remove the locks and also small home-made explosive devices.

The second suspect had boarded a train to London earlier in the day. She is alleged to have drugged the Guards and made her escape with the other suspect.
